Financial Coaching in Action: A Home of Her Own

Recently the Casper Star Tribune published an article about Megan Wilde, a successful Habitat for Humanity home recipient. Her journey to qualify and receive a home was not an easy one. Wyoming Housing Network was proud of our counselor Marilyn Lojo's part in that journey.

"Megan took a four-week finance course with Lojo, set goals and eventually paid off all her debt. By the time she submitted her second application to Habitat — all 75 pages of bank statements, W-2s, pages detailing her credit history, and a two-page letter detailing the reasons she needed a house — she did so with confidence." Marilyn was quoted as saying "It's amazing the difference in what a monthly payment is," she said. "That zero percent interest rate brings it down to where families can actually afford the house."

In September Marilyn Lojo was recognized by Habitat for Humanity for her dedication to helping applicants be successful and her support of their mission.
